Team 18 - Sprint Retrospective
Study Buddy

What went well?

Communication
      As with the first sprint, our team did a good job of finding time to work together. All group members attended every stand up meetings and were punctual. As a team we did a good job of communicating with and helping each other.

Teamwork
      Each one did the work assigned to them and helped out the others wherever need be which helped accomplish all the user stories.

Met User Stories
      During this sprint our team did a much better job focusing on our user story objectives. Last sprint we spent a little too much time focusing on unnecessary parts of the project, which caused us to not meet a couple of our user stories. This time we did not make that mistake and focused on the sprint, which allowed us to complete all of our desired user stories.

What did not go well?

Procrastination
      While not as much of a problem as the last sprint, procrastination did lead to a couple late nights. This was not a huge issue, but it is something we could improve on.

Unsuccessful User Stories
      We met all of our declared user stories this sprint.

How should you improve?

Limiting procrastination
      As mentioned above, procrastination played a minor role in this sprint, especially for the front end. While this didn't hurt our end result, it is something we can improve upon in order to accomplish more in the final sprint.

Starting early

We managed to finish off all the user stories but we left a couple till the very last minute. We can improve this by starting a bit earlier just to accommodate enough time for any unexpected errors.

Adapt and reacting to challenges

Similar to the previous sprint, one of our major hindrances were unexpected difficulties. We improved upon this from our last sprint, but allocating enough time will help us when facing adversity and react even better.
